Tripartite agreement on temporary wage compensation

Tripartite agreement on temporary wage compensation for private sector employees

The agreement covers employees working in private companies that are particularly economically affected as a consequence of COVID-19 and therefore facing having to give notice of redundancies of a minimum of 30 percent of their employees or more than 50 employees.

The companies can use the new wage compensation scheme if they opt out of the existing possibilities for temporary laying off employees without pay.

The companies in the private sector continue to provide full pay for their employees during the compensation period, even though they may be severely economically affected due to COVID-19. The employees who are at risk of redundancy cannot work, but are laid off temporarily with full pay during the compensation period.

At the same time, it is a precondition for wage compensation that, for the duration of the wage compensation period, the company refrains from dismissing employee for economic reasons.

The individual worker for whom the company seeks wage compensation must take holiday or time off in lieu amounting to a total of five days in connection with the compensation period. If the employee has no holidays, time off in lieu etc. of a duration of five days, he or she must take leave without pay or holidays from the next holiday year. The companies cannot receive wage compensation for these days.

The state wage compensation for employees who are at risk of redundancy will constitute ¾ of the wage bill for the monthly salaries of the employees covered by the scheme, however not exceeding DKK 23,000 per month for a full-time employee covered by the scheme. For non-salaried employees, the state wage compensation may amount to 90 percent, however not exceeding DKK 26,000 a month per full-time employee covered by the scheme. The companies can only be comprised by the scheme for a maximum of three months.

The temporary compensation scheme will be effective from 9 March 2020 and until 9 June 2020.
